

INAUGURATION OF INSTITUTE OF VEDIC CITY PLANNING

On 26 MAY 2011, Dr. Eike Hartmann, Minister of Vedic Architecture of the Global Country of World Peace, inaugurated the MERU Institute of Vedic City Planning with his team of architects and planners.

Dr. Hartmann said cities should be 'most anciently designed and most modernly equipped'. Maharishi gave this insight to clarify that design should always be in full accord with the eternal laws of nature, and that living comfort should be fully supported by the best of modern technology.

The current great interest in sustainable architecture and cities has given rise to very creative designs for all kinds of innovations, such as 'skyscraper farms'. This has highlighted the need for guidance, so the tremendous creativity of the construction industry is channelled more in accord with natural law. This is the purpose of the new Institute.

Please see the details at this site: www.vedicityplanning.com.

Please click HERE to view the recording of the inauguration.

https://www.mgcwp.org/vastuseminars2/media/vastu_media.php